Who Am I?

By Alison Brown and Florence Brown

Here is my home.
It is a nest.
Who am I?

I am a bird.

Pizza Time

“Let’s make a pizza!” says Stella.

“What will we put on our pizza?” asks Oliver

“Ice cream is yummy,” says Stella.
“Let’s put ice cream
on our pizza first!”

A Winter Day in the Arctic

By Shari Schwartz, Helen Tomassini, and Linda Widenmaier

Illustrated by Pat Gangnon

It was a very cold, winter day.

Dad got the dogs out
to go to the lake.

Geela helped him with the dogs.

Raccoons

So he went out to look for some food.
He came to a hill and he saw many, many turkeys.

“I like to eat turkeys,” said Coyote
and he hid behind a tree.

What chipmunks look like

Chipmunks are little and brown.

They have white and black stripes and a white stomach.

A chipmunk has two eyes, two ears, four tiny paws, a nose, some sharp teeth, some whiskers and a furry tail.

Making Maple Syrup

By Janet Intscher
Illustrated by Pat Gangnon

It is delicious on pancakes, on ice cream and even on snow!

Where does maple syrup come from?

Maple syrup comes from the sap of sugar maple trees.

There are sugar maples in different parts of Canada and the United States.

City Transportation

By Janet Intscher and Pat Etue

The Bus

In most cities people take buses.
Your parents may take a bus to get to work or to go shopping.

A bus is a great way
to visit a friend,
go to a movie
or go to the library.

WOLVES

BY KAREN DUNN
ILLUSTRATED BY REBECCA BUCHANAN

Another way to tell the difference between a wolf and a dog is the footprint.

A wolf has a narrower chest than a dog of the same size.

When you see wolf paw prints, the left and the right tracks are closer together than those made by a dog.
